

SIP Reimagining Sembawang Shipyard

The Singapore Institute of Planners (SIP) is proud to have reimagined the future of the historic Sembawang Shipyard area into a vibrant, mixed-use waterfront district.

This visionary concept integrates housing, amenities, and workspaces while celebrating the site's rich maritime heritage — creating a dynamic and inclusive environment for future generations.

This marks SIP's second major engagement following our involvement in the draft master plan of Paya Lebar Airbase.

These national-level collaborations have provided valuable opportunities for our planners to contribute meaningfully to Singapore's urban future and to exchange ideas that shape our city's evolving landscape.

A big thank you to our collaborators and planners who continue to shape Singapore's urban future! In the coming months, we will share more about how SIP was involved in the process of drafting the plan. Watch this space!

For more details on Sembawang Shipyard, please click the link below to visit relevant page at URA's website

<https://www.uradraftmasterplan.gov.sg/regional-plans/north/sembawang-shipyard/>