

8th SIP Planning Awards Gala Dinner

Singapore Institute of Planners (SIP) is pleased to bring back the Planning Awards Presentation & Gala dinner this year 22 September. We extend our warm invitation to you and your organisation to join us after a hiatus of four (4) years. Let's come together to relive the camaraderie and warmth of colleagues & friends in the planning community.

This year, we will be presenting 12 awards, recognising outstanding planning projects, as well as individuals who have contributed significantly to the planning professions. This includes a new joint Award with Hong Kong Institute of Planners (HKIP), in our efforts to promote regional collaboration and learning.

We will be joined by our HKIP counterparts at the dinner for the inauguration of this award.

Dinner Special - Fireside chat with Paul Farmer and Tim Stonor

Mr Paul Farmer served as CEO of the American Planning Association (APA) and its professional institute, the American Institute of Certified Planners (AICP), 2001-2014. He received academic and professional degrees from Rice University and Cornell University. His awards include a Progressive Architecture Award for Design Excellence, a National Endowment for the Arts Research Award, the Dale Prize for Excellence in Urban and Regional Planning, and the NYU-Poly Spirit of Innovation Award. He is no stranger to SIP and is currently working actively with SIP on the accreditation programme for our planners.

Professor Tim Stonor is the Managing Director of Space Syntax, an urban planning and design company - originally created at the Bartlett, University College London in 1989 - with a mission to develop, apply and disseminate a science-based and human-focused approach to architectural design. He is recognised internationally for his work in the development of data-driven design techniques, and their use in urban planning and architectural design projects from city master plans to individual building interiors.

All SIP members will be awarded 5 CPD points for attending the award presentation & dinner.
